INTRODUCTION.

This book is a key to the thirteenth and succeeding editions of the Author's text entitled the Reporting Style. Those portions of each lesson designated as List-words, Exercise, Phrases, and Speed Sentence, are correctly keyed by the engraved pages (pp. 5 to 84 inclusive). Next the translations appear in regular order, printed in common type. The section numbers which appear throughout refer always to the corresponding paragraphs in the Reporting Style. The book is so small, and the arrangement so simple, that the student will be able to refer quickly to any particular lesson or exercise without the aid of an index.

This key can easily be abused. It is proper to point out its right use. It is designed, not to make the road to proficiency easy, but sure. First master the lesson; then you may allow the key to tell you if you have learned it aright. In all cases let this book be your last resort. The student's endeavor should be to write off each exercise so well, that as the lessons advance a decreasing number of errors will be found when a comparison with these pages is made.

The style of engraving, it will be seen, is different from that in the text-book. It is desirable that the student of a system of short-hand should have placed before him as a model, characters that are as nearly as possible geometrically perfect. For this reason the kind of engraving made use of in the Reporting Style is uniform and exact. To imitate this should be the student's constant aim, though he may never in fact equal it.

INTRODUCTION.

The characters which appear in the key, however, are imperfect; but the very faults have their uses. All the engraved pages of this book are fac simile reproductions from actual pen work, a portion of it written with a fair degree of speed. For that reason, these pages are specially useful as reading exercises, since the learner should accustom himself to deciphering characters which present those imperfections that usually belong to notes actually taken in the course of business. The defects found here, however, are not in the outlining or phrasing. As to execution, it is expected that the careful writer will equal and often excel it.

In the production of this little work, the Author was aided to a very considerable extent, by the zealous labors of two friends and fellow teachers, Mr. J. W. O'Byrne, and Mrs. J. L. McPheeters, who well deserve this public acknowledgment of his thanks for the important assistance rendered by them.

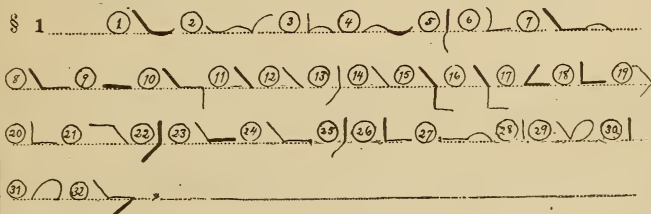

The kindness will be appreciated if teachers or students will call our attention to errors of any kind which they may discover.

THE AUTHOR.

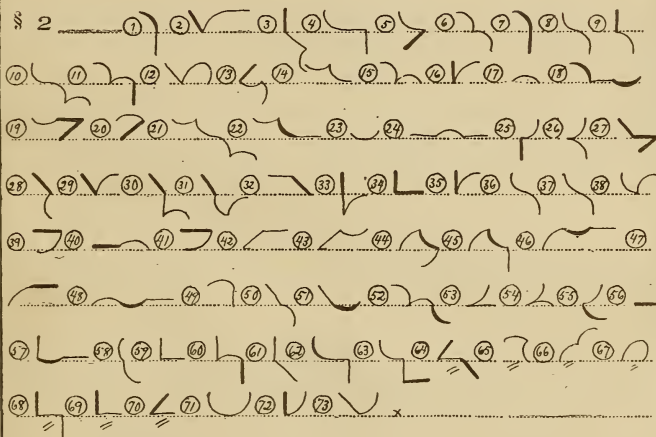

ST. LOUIS, January, 1891.

Handwritten musical notation on a five-line staff, featuring various notes, rests, and bar lines. The notation is written in a cursive, handwritten style. The staff is divided into measures by vertical bar lines. The notes are written in a way that suggests a specific melodic line, with some notes having stems and others being beamed together. The overall appearance is that of a personal musical sketch or a working draft for a composition.

LESSON 17.

191. — 1. The hare one day laughs at the clumsy legs and slow pace of the tortoise. 2. But the tortoise challenges him to a race. 3. Though you travel like a railway car I will win. 4. The hare deeming this simply impossible agrees to it. 5. The fox chooses the race track and fixes the goal. 6. On Wednesday they set out together. 7. The tortoise never pauses at all. 8. She travels on with slow pace until she finally reaches the tree. 9. The hare relies on his quickness and has no anxiety. 10. He eats dinner and falls asleep by the wayside. 11. Waking up he sees the tortoise already quietly sleeping at the goal.

LESSON 18.

200. — 1. A poor widow had but a single sheep. 2. At shearing time she wishes to take its fleece and at the same time save paying out money for any one to help her. 3. She took the fleece so unskillfully that with the fleece she took the flesh. 4. The sheep writhes because of the injury and says, "Why do you do me so much harm? 5. What weight does my life add to the wool? 6. If you wish my flesh there is the butcher who will kill me in a trice. 7. But if you wish to take my fleece only there is the shearer who will take that simply and do me no harm." 8. We may cause much loss by making too small an outlay.

LESSON 19.

207.—1. They say nothing but do everything. 2. A swarm of bees in June is worth a silver spoon. 3. What a heavy burden is a name that has become famous too soon. 4. It is the rule of rules and the general law of laws that every person should observe those of the place where he is. 5. Life and death are in the power of the tongue. 6. Time will discover everything. 7. In thy face I see the map of honor, truth, and loyalty. 8. Patch grief with proverbs. 9. There are people who, like new songs, are in vogue only for a time.

LESSON 20.

215.—1. An excuse is worse and more terrible than a lie. 2. Man seems to be deficient in nothing so much as he is in time. 3. If a man wishes to become rich he ought to appear to be rich. 4. He is rich whose income is more than his expenses, and he is poor whose expenses exceed his income. 5. He that can have patience can have what he will. 6. There are some people who give with the air of refusal. 7. Silence is more sociable than false speech. 8. A rich man is either a rogue or a rogue's heir.

LESSON 21.

226.—1. Luck whines while labor whistles. 2. Luck relies on chance, labor on character. 3. Some people never have anything to do with an unlucky place or an unlucky man. 4. What three people know everybody knows. 5. There is a time to speak and a time to keep silence. 6. Life is a dream and death an awakening. 7. He that hath no money will have to pay with his skin. 8. Luck is ever waiting for something to turn up. 9. Flattery is base coin to which our vanity gives currency. 10. For him who does everything in its proper time one day is worth three. 11. Custom is the plague of wise men and the idol of fools.

REPORTING STYLE KEY-BOOK.

LESSON 22.

234. — 1. Two men were traveling when they suddenly came upon a bear. 2. One of them quickly hid in the branches of a tree. 3. The other, seeing that he would be taken, fell down. 4. When the bear came up to him, he sought as much as possible to feign the appearance of death. 5. The bear soon took his leave, for a bear it is said will only eat game that has been slain. 6. When he was gone the other traveler came down from the tree. 7. He jocularly asks, "What was it that the bear spoke in your ear?" 8. The answer was, "He gave me this advice: Never travel with one who will leave you at the approach of danger."

LESSON 23.

242. — 1. Love is never lasting which flames before it burns. 2. Through danger safety comes, through trouble, rest. 3. The worst men often give the best advice. 4. The eternal stars shine out as soon as it is dark enough. 5. We must love men ere to us they seem worthy of our love. 6. Hope springs eternal in the human breast. 7. Be mannerly for the purpose of digestion. 8. A swarm of bees in May is worth a stack of hay. 9. What is becoming is honest, and what is honest must always be becoming. 10. Heaven is a treasury of everlasting joy. 11. Success often costs more than it is worth. 12. The falling drop at last will cave a stone. 13. Patience and time do more than strength or passion. 14. Labor with strong will and keen eyes will turn up something. 15. Live as long as you may, the first twenty years are the longest half of your life. 16. It is always the worst wheel that creaks.

LESSON 24.

253. — 1. Among wonderful things is a sore eyed person who is an oculist. 2. Whatever beauty may be, it has for its basis order, and for its essence, unity. 3. He that is at sea must either sail or sink. 4. Manners are stronger than laws. 5. Order is Heaven's first law. 6. A babe is a mother's anchor. 7. In love anger is always false. 8. He conquers grief who can take a firm resolution. 9. Whether your time calls you to live or die, do both like a prince.

LESSON 25.

264. — 1. A creaking gate hangs long on its hinges. 2. Seek your salve where you got your sore. 3. Take a hair of the dog that bit you. 4. Hunger drives the wolf out of the wood. 5. A thing done is not to do. 6. Daylight will peep through a small hole. 7. That lets the cat out of the bag. 8. The pot that boils too much loses flavor. 9. Better a wee fire to warm us than a muckle fire to burn us. 10. Draw not your bow till your arrow is fixed.

LESSON 26.

274. — 1. We can do more good by being good than in any other way. 2. Where there is much light the shadow is deep. 3. Our acts make or mar us, we are the children of our deeds. 4. A light heart lives long. 5. There was a time when all the world acted upon books; now books act upon the world. 6. All true love is grounded on esteem.

LESSON 27.

281. — 1. Absent in body, but present in spirit. 2. Be great in act as you have been in thought. 3. Beauty is the mark God sets on virtue. 4. Everything that is great is not always good, but all good things are great. 5. In order to do great things it is necessary to live as if one was never to die. 6. One and God make a majority.

REPORTING STYLE KEY-BOOK.

LESSON 28.

288. — 1. The looking on the best side of every event is worth more than a thousand pounds a year. 2. A genius is never to be acquired by art, but it is the gift of nature. 3. That is the best part of beauty which a picture cannot express. 4. Hatred is blind as well as love. 5. Next to acquiring good friends, the best acquisition is that of good books. 6. I can promise to be candid, but I cannot promise to be impartial. 7. I have often thought of death, and I find it the least of all evils. 8. The greatest difficulties lie where we are not looking for them. 9. There is in man a higher aim than love of happiness: he can do without happiness, and instead thereof find blessedness.

LESSON 29.

298. — 1. Men are taught virtue and a love of independence by living in the country. 2. The end of man is an action and not a thought, though it were of the noblest. 3. Years do not make sages, they only make old men. 4. The empty vessel makes the greatest sound. 5. It is much better to have your gold in your hand than in your heart. 6. I have always observed that to succeed in the world we must be foolish in appearance, but in reality, wise. 7. Genius does what it must and talent does what it can. 8. The least movement is of importance to all nature. 9. Infinite is the help man can yield to man.

LESSON 30.

309. — 1. Childhood is the sleep of reason. 2. Every man, however little, makes a figure in his own eyes. 3. Fear always springs from ignorance. 4. If a man empties his purse into his head no one can take it from him. 5. Every man is a volume

TRANSLATIONS.

if you know how to read him. 6. The miserable have no other medicine, but only hope. 7. As we grow old we become more foolish and more wise. 8. The world cannot do without great men, but great men are troublesome to the world. 9. How disappointment tracks the steps of hope.

LESSON 31.

316. — 1. Activity and melancholy are incompatible. 2. The company in which you will improve the most will be the least expensive to you. 3. When you introduce a moral lesson, let it be brief. 4. No evil is without its compensation. 5. There is more hope of a fool than of him who is wise in his own conceit. 6. What is more miserable than discontent? 7. A good face is the best letter of recommendation. 8. Words are good, but there is something better. 9. The best is not to be explained by words. 10. The spirit in which we act is the chief matter. 11. Action can only be understood and represented by the spirit. 12. I would seek unto God, and unto God commit my cause. 13. Man's conscience is the oracle of God.

LESSON 32.

Page 165. — 1. Whatever is beautiful is profitable. 2. What exile from himself can flee? 3. With consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do; he may as well concern himself with his shadow on the wall. 4. We are never deceived, we deceive ourselves. 5. The youth of friendship is better than its old age. 6. Incredulity robs us of many pleasures. 7. When men are friends there is no need of justice; but when men are just, they still need friendship. 8. Do you wish men to speak well of you? Then speak well of yourself.

NEW YORK CITY, May 22, '86.

Mr. John C. Wilson, Sec'y, Johnston Ruffler Co., Williamsport, New York:

DEAR SIR — We are in receipt of your favor of the 20th inst. You are mistaken in regard to terms on which the material invoiced March 25th was sold you. Unless special arrangements are made to the contrary our terms are invariably cash thirty days.

If you desire we can allow ninety days; but this will necessitate either a change in our prices, or the adding of interest after thirty days at the rate of six per cent. per annum. Kindly indicate your wishes.

Yours truly,

JAMES H. FISH & CO.

LESSON 34.

Page 175. — 1. Knowledge of our duties is the most useful part of philosophy. 2. The best education in the world is that got by struggling to get a living. 3. Did a person but know the value of an enemy he would purchase him with pure gold. 4. Genius is the gold in the mine, talent is the miner who works and brings it out. 5. The setting of a great hope is like the setting of the sun.

Q. How could you see the train coming in the night?

A. I saw a light.

Q. On the wild train?

A. Yes, sir; but it was not a head-light, just a lamp of some kind.

Q. How far can you see a head-light along there?

A. While making the curve right at the dam.

Q. The first place you could see it after that was at the station?

A. Yes, sir; I feel quite certain about that.

Q. You are about as certain of that as anything else you have testified to?

Judge Holman, on the part of plaintiff, objects to the question on the ground that it is not proper cross-examination.

Objection sustained; plaintiff excepts.

A. Yes, sir. I am confident of that.

(Jury make no response.)

Q. Did anybody with whom you have talked pretend to give you the facts?

Juror: Well, I heard this about it —

Q. Did the person with whom you talked say that he was telling you the facts in the case?

A. No, sir; I think not?

Q. Then have you formed or expressed an opinion as to whether the plaintiff should recover in this case?

A. To the best of my knowledge, I don't believe I have. I was going to say that I had not heard of the suit at all until I came to the city. To the best of my recollection I have not expressed any opinion.

Q. Mr. Keed, have you heard of the case before?

A. Yes, sir; often.

Q. Heard of the facts?

A. Yes, sir; and expressed my opinion of the case when it occurred. I live close there and know all about it.

Q. And you have formed and expressed an opinion about it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you think your opinion would have any influence upon you in making up your verdict?

Yes, sir; I think so.

I call that mind free which protects itself against the usurpations of society; which does not cower to man's opinion; which feels accountable to a higher tribunal than man's, and which respects a higher law than fashion; which respects itself too much to be the slave or the tool of the many or the few.

I call that mind free which through confidence in God and in the power of virtue has cast off all fear but that of wrong doing; which no menace or peril can enthrall; which is calm in the midst of tumults, and possesses itself though all else be lost. I call that mind free which is jealous of its own freedom; which guards itself from being merged in others, which guards its empire over itself as nobler than the empire of the world.

ONE*HUNDRED*VALUABLE*SUGGESTIONS

—TO—

SHORT-HAND STUDENTS.

—BY—

SELBY A. MORAN,

University of Michigan.

∴∴∴∴∴∴∴

This work has been prepared with the view of affording students, teachers and young reporters of all systems of Short-hand with such special assistance as it has been found necessary for them to have in order that they may be successful in their work. These suggestions embrace many important facts which every student of Short-hand should understand; yet facts which no text-book whatever contains. Every Stenographer is also aware that between the mere learning of the art from some text-book and actual reporting there is a wide gap over which the young reporter must pass, generally with anything but a pleasant experience.

To render to the student the help which he cannot obtain from any text-book, and to bridge over the chasm between the learning of the theory and its successful use in practice, have been the chief objects kept in view in preparing this work.

"HAVE FAITH IN SHORT-HAND."

—SELECTED FROM—

"100 VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS."

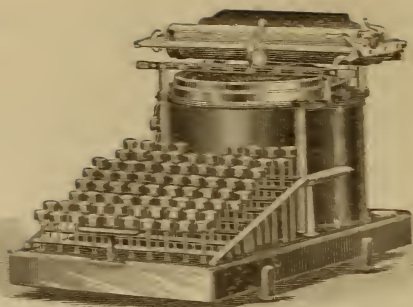

"There is probably no other one thing that has caused so many people to fail in their endeavors to become reporters as a lack of confidence in Short-hand. Too often we hear beginners say, 'I will try it and see whether I can succeed or not.' The young man or woman who, after seeing that thousands of others have made a success of Short-hand, cannot say, 'I will succeed,' had better not spend time or money upon it, or, in fact, upon anything else that requires a little study and application."
